Bega clock tower repairs

If you are planning on coming to Bega on Monday 23 or Tuesday 24 January you will notice that access to Gipps Street from Carp Street will be closed on these days.

The Dr Evershed Memorial Clock in Bega will be ticking away and telling the time again after repair works which will be carried out between 7am and 4pm on each day.

Access to Club Bega, the Commercial Hotel bottle shop drive through, the Gipps Street carpark and other Gipps Street properties and businesses will be from Bega Street during these times.

Signage will be in place to inform road users and pedestrians, and traffic control will direct pedestrians around the work area.

The master clock system will be fully replaced, following a full custom build by one of only a few master clock builders still working in Australia. A battery back-up system with a high frequency quartz controller for precision timekeeping will form part of the new clock, and after repairs it will automatically change for daylight saving time.

Many of the components have been skillfully built by hand, including the dial train which houses the gear box attached to the clock hands.
